Enriching lives and the world

Sumitomo Corporation Group develops businesses in a wide range of industrial fields on a global scale aiming to achieve prosperity and realize dreams through sound business activities. Since our foundation in 1919, we have continued to grow through enhancing our ability to create new value together with stakeholders such as business partners and clients, across business networks around the world.

Our corporate mission statement carries out Sumitomo's business philosophy—which has set the foundation for Sumitomo's businesses—represented by one of the credos; "Benefit for self and others, private and public interests are one and the same."*

*This credo underscores the importance that Sumitomo's business activities should not only benefit Sumitomo, but must also benefit society as a whole in order to achieve sustainable growth together.

We believe that our continuous commitment to creating value needed by society and contributions to solving social issues as a key priority, will lead to the Group's continuous growth. We will further enhance sustainability management and work toward the realization of a sustainable society and enhancement of corporate value.

The world is facing some serious social issues such as climate change, which increases the expectations on the private sector toward solving these issues. We will accomplish our goal, as represented by the Group's corporate message—"Enriching lives and the world"—to further enrich the world, society, and people's lives. By living up to our principles, we will unite as one to take on the challenge of creating new value.

We look forward to your continued support.

The origin of Sumitomo

Detail information

The origin of Sumitomo can be found in "Monjuin Shiigaki (Founder's Precepts)", a document in which Masatomo Sumitomo, the founder of the Sumitomo family, described how a merchant should conduct business. In its early days, Sumitomo prospered from the trade of copper and other goods.

Sumitomo's history dates back to its founder, Masatomo Sumitomo (1585 – 1652), who opened a book and medicine shop in Kyoto in the 17th century.

Masatomo left his teachings in the form of the "Founder's Precepts", in which he expounds concisely the points in conducting business. His precepts still serve as the foundation of the "Sumitomo's Business Philosophy."

At the beginning, the Founder's Precepts call on us to "Not only in matters of business but in all situations, make efforts with deepest gratitude in every aspect" as well as to refine ourselves to develop a trustworthy character rather than just pursuing money-making endeavors. In the main text, the precepts emphasize the importance of honesty, prudence, and sound management. Sumitomo became involved in the business of refining copper from the time of Tomomochi Sumitomo (1607 – 1662), the adopted second-generation head of the family. That move was rooted in a refining technology for extracting silver from copper known as "Nanban-buki (Western Refining)", which was developed in the 16th century by Riemon Soga (1572 – 1636), Tomomochi's biological father. The history of the business spans about 430 years. Carrying on founder Masatomo's business philosophy, Tomomochi expanded the business from Kyoto to Osaka, and disclosed the Nanban-buki technology to other copper refiners. Sumitomo thus came to be looked up to as the head family of Nanban-buki, and Osaka subsequently became the center of the copper refining industry in Japan.
